Dear John,

When I gave Eric the keys in Detroit yesterday, he said "Thank Goodness!" Not a fan of my driving, he has complained none about anything else. How could he? Yesterday was one for the ages -- three groups of great folks with whom we laughed and broke bread. As Ed and Ben head to Thomas Wilson today, Eric and I remind them and all WEL employees that whenever you travel you too are BUGGIN. Buggin', my friends, is no trip, it's our way to live happy in a surly time. AND IT WORKS!!

Tuesday, January 19th
Cleveland, OH to Leola, PA
High 32 Low 26 Scattered Flurries

Eric and I flank the great staff of Cadillac Insurance Group who met us for breakfast yesterday. Yes Eric did touch Lake Cadillac.

Archie McIntyre stands left of John outside the famous Lafayette Coney's in downtown Detroit. The place was packed! For those from Burlington this is Zacks without Slaw.

Watch for details of the food we eat and the cool people with whom we dine. For Eric and John, insurance is never primary. Food is seldom secondary.

What irony here! Unable to locate the keys the Meadowbrook staff could do no better than let me touch a Platinum. But hey, the "Norm's Wife" syndrome is debunked.

I have names and funny stories to publish, but they'll have to wait a day as we're ready to roll to Pennsylvania. Thanks to our talented friend Jim Kelvington, we're moving a little slow this morning, but that's also a super story for another day! Hey Gregg and Jason, the pressure is on!

Escalade Update -- slow progress with a detailed report to follow. Check out Eric's "water touching" pictures on the blog:
